That's Buzz Aldrin on the moon on July 20, 1969.

They put a man on the moon?

Associated Press

Most Americans have never known a world where man hasn't been to the moon.

It used to be a given that people knew where they were when man first walked on the moon on July 20, 1969, watching the black-and-white images on TV. But now most Americans don't know where they were because the majority of Americans hadn't been born yet.

The median age of Americans, as of last year, was 36.8, meaning more than half of U.S. residents are younger than 40, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Five years ago, when NASA celebrated the 35th anniversary of the moon landing, the median age of Americans was 36.1, so most residents were at least alive when Armstrong made his giant leap for mankind.

Six current astronauts were not alive when Neil Armstrong walked on the moon, including Christopher Cassidy, a crew member of the ongoing mission on the space shuttle Endeavour.

Your moon moment

We asked RedEye's Twitter followers to tell us their moon moment—that big thing in their lifetime they'll always remember, whether it's the moon landing or something else. Before enlisting, Bowe Bergdahl worked as a barista at a coffee shop in Hailey, Zaney's River Street Coffee House, where a sign on the counter encouraged patrons to keep Bergdahl in their thoughts and prayers.

CAPTURED AT 23

VIDEO: SOLDIER 'SCARED I WON'T BE ABLE TO GO HOME'

Associated Press

HAILEY, Idaho A soldier from Idaho who disappeared from his base in Afghanistan has been captured, the Pentagon confirmed Sunday, a day after he was seen in a Taliban video posted online.

The Defense Department released the name of Pfc. Bowe R. Bergdahl, 23, who was serving with an Alaska-based infantry regiment. The private was last seen walking away from his base near the border with Pakistan in an area known to be a Taliban stronghold.

Even before his name became public, two U.S. defense officials confirmed to The Associated Press that the man in the 28-minute video was the captured soldier. The video, in which Bergdahl said he was "scared I won't be able to go home," provided the first public glimpse of the missing American.

The Pentagon statement said Bergdahl's whereabouts became unknown on July 1 and his status was changed July 3 to missing-captured.

It wasn't clear who initially captured Bergdahl, but the U.S. command in Afghanistan said he was being held by the Taliban and condemned the video as a violation of international law.

"I'm glad to see he appears unharmed, but again, this is a Taliban propaganda video," spokeswoman Lt. Cmdr. Christine Sidenstricker said. "They are exploiting the soldier in violation of international law."

Bob Bergdahl, the soldier's father, told the AP Saturday that the family was requesting media to respect their privacy.

"We hope and pray for our son's safe return to his comrades and then to our family, and we appreciate all the support and expressions of sympathy shown to us by our family members, our friends and others across the nation," Bob Bergdahl said in a statement issued through the Department of Defense. "Thank you, and please continue to keep Bowe in your thoughts and prayers."

Bergdahl entered the Army in June 2008 and went through basic training in Ft. Benning, Ga., said Lt. Col. Jonathan Allen, spokesman for Ft. Richardson. Bergdahl also took advanced individual and parachute training in Georgia.

Bergdahl reported for duty in Alaska in October and deployed to Afghanistan in February.

The A-B-Cs of social media

New to social media? Here's what you need to know to be successful. It's as easy as A-B-C.

Automate: Nothing wrong with setting up tweets in advance. Try <http://su.pr>.

Blog: Maintain one as a hub to get your point across. Then supplement with social media.

Comment: On any platform, a quick comment is good for your social media karma.

DM: On Twitter, it's customary to send a direct message to thank a new follower. Never use automated messages.

E-mail: It's not dead yet. Sign up at posterous.com and be reminded how powerful it is.

Follow and friend: When someone follows you, follow back. It's social media. Be social.

Get busy: Building a large network requires hard work, unless you're Ashton Kutcher.

Hashtags: Keywords preceded by the # sign. Helps other tweeters find topics quickly.

Icon: Make sure you upload one to all your social media profiles so you aren't mistaken for a spammer.

Justin.tv: Video is hot. Use justin.tv to broadcast and watch live video on Facebook.

Keywords: Make the most of your 140 characters. Carefully choose keywords, then post.

Listen: No original content? No problem. Start by listening to what others are saying.

Mashable.com: Social media bible for beginners and advanced users alike.

Network: Attend tweetups (meetings of Twitter users) and other social networking events. Know your audience.

Obama: Looking for inspiration? The president embraces social media like a pro.

Profiles: Fill them in completely. Otherwise, you may not be listed in important directories.

Quid pro quo: If someone asks for a favor—such as retweeting a link—consider it. They could return the favor someday.

RT: Retweeting says you think your followers would enjoy what someone else is posting. It's a nice thing to do.

Shrinkage: Size matters. Smaller links mean more room to tweet. Try <http://ls.gd>.

Transparency: Tweeting or Facebooking at work? Be transparent about your relationship with the company.

Use the @ symbol: It means you're talking to a particular person. Started on Twitter but is recognized anywhere online.

Visual: Photos and videos are fun. Post some. Check out Twitpic and Twitvid.

Wordpress.com: Perfect place to start a free blog.

Xobni.com: Outlook plugin that searches all over the Web for info about your contacts.

YouTube: The amount of video instruction available there is staggering. Use it.

Zooloo.com: Cool-looking dashboard with one-click access to all your social media.

Did I miss anything or do you have questions/suggestions? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. And it can start with any letter.

HAPPY HAPPY, JOY JOY

YOUNG AMERICANS AREN'T FEELING THE STRESSES OF PRETTY MUCH ANYTHING

Associated Press

It's on the bus. It's at the bar. It's following you on the sidewalk.

Happiness.

There must be something in the air—or in the Red Bull—because a new poll says more Millennials are living life in a happy-happy, joy-joy state of mind.

Rick Lagrappe, a 19-year-old without a job and living at home in Shawnee, Okla., described himself as a “very happy” person in an MTV poll of 1,100 young people released Tuesday, and he wasn't alone.

The poll showed that 73 percent of 18- to 24-year-olds were generally happy with life, compared with 66 percent in 2007, even though more of them, including Lagrappe, think they'll have a harder time finding work, buying a house and raising a family than their parents did.

“It's just me. I'm a happy person,” said Lagrappe, who has little cash to spend on gas for his car and has been pressed into service to care for his 6-year-old sister—the “beast.”

One reason for Lagrappe's rose-colored glasses: He's “very happy” with his relationships with his family and friends, according to the poll.

Some Chicagoans, however, expressed surprise at the higher happiness numbers, including 33-year-old Mike McEldowney. Why so surprised? “I watch the news,” he said, laughing.

“It seems like there are a lot of miserable people, unless these people were all in college,” McEldowney said. “I think even if they polled 25- to 30-year-olds it would be substantially different.”

Still, asked about his own happiness level, McEldowney said he is “really happy because I'm on a sabbatical from work, but if I was working, not so much.”

Camdin Clanton, 25, of Lakeview, said it makes sense that younger people are happy. “They don't have many stresses,” she said, and can bounce back more easily from a lost job or money issues.

Compared to 2007 results, the poll, which included people ranging in age from 13 to 24, showed respondents are less happy with the amount of money they have—36 percent to 31 percent, with 53 percent saying they believe it will be harder to find a job than it was for their parents, compared to 30 percent two years ago.

EVERYBODY SPREAD LOVE

Of respondents ages 13-17, 75 percent said they were happy, up from 65 percent two years ago and 73 percent of those polled from age 18 to age 24 said they were happy, up from 66 percent in 2007.

Youth’s concerns

A recently conducted MTV poll compared the relative happiness and concerns of young people to an identical poll taken in 2007. SOURCES: MTV, AP

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE ...

... generally happy	... not happy with the money they have
66% in 2007	73% in 2009
36% in 2007	31% in 2009

Fifty-nine percent said they’ll have a harder time buying a house, compared to 41 percent in 2007, and 48 percent said it will be harder to raise a family, compared to 36 percent in 2007.

Being happy despite financial worries could be a good sign, said Dr. Alvin Rosenfeld, a child and adolescent psychiatrist in New York City and a lecturer at Harvard Medical School.

“Maybe that’s not terrible,” he said. “Maybe we’re in a transition from a time where we think material objects are going to make us happy.”

The bad economy, he said, might have young people realizing “we were addicted to purchases we didn’t really need. ... Maybe we will think more about the relationships that matter to us, the values.”

A recent AP-mtvU poll of college students also found a big increase in the percentage of students at four-year colleges who reported being happy with the way things are going in their lives. Seventy-four percent said they were happy, up from 64 percent in 2008. That’s despite an increase in the number of students who reported being stressed out by finances and job prospects after graduation.

But such responses depend on context, said James Hamilton, 20, of Bridgeport. Asked about his own happiness, the IIT student said he was somewhat happy after giving the question some thought. “It’s a tough question to put yourself in one of those categories,” he said. “I think it is more of a day-to-day question.”

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE FINDING IT DIFFICULT TO ...

... find a job	30% in 2007	53% in 2009
... buy a house	41% in 2007	59% in 2009
... raise a family	36% in 2007	48% in 2009

Or could it be that, in this country, people may be afraid to describe themselves as unhappy?

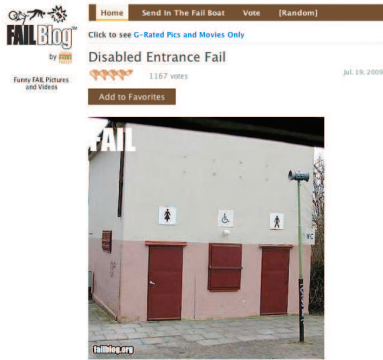

“Often in America, being unhappy is akin to being criminal,” Rosenfeld said. “Everybody’s supposed to put on a happy face. I don’t find teenagers to be unhappy, but I do find them to be quite concerned about the future, quite concerned about finding their place in the world.”

In some cases, teens are happy, because, well, they don’t have a whole lot to worry about.

Sixteen-year-old Michael Waggoner of Katy, Texas, credits his good attitude with the reason that he’s very happy and that stress rarely bothers him. “I don’t worry about things too much, and if I do, it’s just temporary,” he said. “Not too many bad things have happened to me.”

Viva misery

So the kids are feeling happier this year, according to a new MTV poll. La-dee-freaking-da. Let’s all hold hands and sing. Hate to break it to ya, Generation Whatever-You’re-Called, but life isn’t all sunshine and hugs. It’s full of unhappiness, frustration and failure. Fortunately, plenty of bloggers and Web heads are willing to document this for our collective benefit. Here are a few of RedEye’s favorite sites that celebrate misery.

John Collins (standing) talks to Dr. Scott Kale of Lake Forest inside Metra Car 553, the nation's last privately owned commuter car, before heading out of the Ogilvie Station. ABEL URIBE/TRIBUNE

On the CTA, the butts prevail

Chicago Tribune

If you had ever heard of the CTA's Maxi cars — rail cars with fewer seats than the CTA introduced last September to squeeze more riders onto crowded trains, particularly during rush hours when some commuters are left standing on station platforms—you won't see more of them going forward.

Or backward.

According to the Tribune's Getting Around columnist, the Maxi pilot project was a failure in the eyes, and especially the posteriors, of riders.

"Customers didn't like the loss of seats," said CTA spokeswoman Noelle Gaffney. Last year after then-CTA president Ron Huberman introduced with great fanfare the cars with 12 or 14 fewer seats and announced plans to expand Maxis to other CTA rail lines, CTA officials decided it wasn't worth the cost or the ire of irritated passengers. But the existing Maxis will not be converted back to regular 39-seat cars, Gaffney said.

Private transport

This Metra commute costs a little more, but look what you get

Chicago Tribune

Tom Mullen isn't a meatpacking mogul or business tycoon. But the attorney has something in common with Philip Armour, Samuel Insull and other Chicago swells from the early 20th Century.

Mullen commutes downtown in a private rail car, a member of a club whose roster was once a litany of Chicago's most prominent and wealthy families.

Now known as Car 553, the nation's last privately owned commuter car is the successor to the famed Deerpath, the coach that Lake Forest's elite purchased 80 years ago to run on the former Chicago & North Western Railroad.

The car was finished in brown mahogany trimmed in gold. The seats were covered with "blue frieze plush." These days, Car 553 is more utilitarian. The walls have blue carpeting. There are no chandeliers or mahogany, and the seats are comfy but not cushy.

And it's perhaps more egalitarian. The lettering on the vestibule says "private," but membership is open to anyone.

"Once upon a time, maybe 40 years ago, these were all the old Lake Forest families, which isn't the case any more. These days we're all ne'er-do-wells like myself," said Richard "Buzz" Norton, an antiques dealer and rider since 1971.

The 70 or so members are mostly professional people, a bit heavy on the lawyers, Norton said.

Whereas fabulous wealth was once the ticket to the Deerpath, all it takes now to hop aboard Car 553 is a Metra monthly pass and a $900-a-year membership in the innocuously named Commuter Associates Inc.

Commuting on Car 553 is a sharp contrast to a typical Metra Bi-Level. The ride on the beige, single-level car is smooth and quiet. Cell phones are restricted to the vestibule or card room. There's always a seat.

Earlier club cars were male-only. Members who brought along their wives were asked to use the regular coach.

Women have been members for about 15 years. The first female was a bank trust officer who happened to be Norton's next-door neighbor.

"There are females and males, and they all get along," said Jan Carlson, who has ridden for four years.

More than anything, she appreciates the comfort and ability to do paperwork on an unused bridge table.

"You can get a lot of work done," said Carlson, director of operations for London-based Apollo Marcom. "I hate to say it, but in the regular [Metra] car, it's all children crying or cell phones going off endlessly."

COME IN, CAR 553

The commuter line earns no revenue from the car other than fares, a spokeswoman said. Club members pay for the maintenance. Membership has been falling off for more than a decade, usually as older members leave the club. The car runs on banker's hours, with an 8:47 a.m. arrival downtown and a 5:07 p.m. departure, but as Richard Norton says, "Nine-to-5 is an obsolete workday these days."

Quinn visits troops in Iraq

Gov. Quinn spent the weekend visiting troops in Iraq. Quinn said Sunday from Kuwait that the Department of Defense invited him on the trip along with a delegation of four other U.S. governors.

Quinn

He said he had a town hall meeting with soldiers earlier Sunday, where they asked about military equipment, education needs and the American economy. The governor said he left Friday from Andrews Air Force Base and met Saturday with U.S. military leaders in Baghdad.

Student dies after jump

Chicago police are investigating the death of a 22-year-old Irish student who died Saturday—several days after jumping off the North Avenue pier, officials said Sunday. An autopsy Sunday determined that Keith O'Reilly, who was on a student visa from Ireland, died from injuries that resulted from diving into shallow water. It also was determined that he had been intoxicated, and the manner of his death was deemed accidental, police said.

Operator under scrutiny in crash

6 SAN FRANCISCO The operator of a light-rail train that crashed and injured dozens of passengers in San Francisco came under scrutiny Sunday as federal investigators tried to figure out why he inexplicably turned off the automatic controls moments before the collision.

National Transportation Safety Board investigator Ted Turpin did not know why the operator switched the controls from automatic to manual in a tunnel near the West Portal Station on Saturday.

Had he kept the autopilot on, the train would have slowed down before arriving at the station and likely not careened into a parked train while going 23 mph, Turpin said. He added that the operator never engaged the emergency brake.

The crash injured 48 people, four seriously, in the fourth major subway or commuter rail accident in the last 10 months in the U.S. None of the injuries were life-threatening.

Two L.A.-based NTSB investigators are working with transit officials to interview passengers, witnesses and focus on assessing the condition of the train tracks, signal systems and the structural integrity of the train cars involved.

A chaotic scene unfolded Saturday after the westbound train rear-ended the other train at a boarding platform. Rescue crews hurried to the scene and removed bloodied passengers, and the operator was pinned inside his damaged compartment, said San Francisco Fire Lt. Ken Smith.

151-pound cupcake sets record

7 MINNEAPOLIS A 151-pound cupcake has been certified as the world's largest.

The 1-foot-tall, 2-foot-wide cupcake on display Saturday at the Mall of America had 15 pounds of fudge filling and 60 pounds of yellow icing.

Guinness World Records adjudicator Danny Girton Jr. called it a "fun and creative achievement."

The cupcake was made by cakes.com, which is run by cake-decoration supplier and marketer DecoPac.

Company spokeswoman Jamie Miller said the giant cupcake will go to a pig farm. The company decided against giving away pieces to mall patrons because most would not have had frosting. Instead, cakes.com gave away 4,000 smaller cupcakes.

Second half, second chance

Cubs, White Sox headed in right direction with hot streaks since the All-Star break

RedEye

Chicago baseball fans are quick to point out the flaws of their favorite teams, and there have been many for the Cubs and White Sox this season. But the start of the second half should be reason enough to give credit where credit is due.

The Cubs completed a four-game sweep of the Washington Nationals in D.C. on Sunday with a dominating 11-3 win. The Sox fell to Baltimore 10-2, but they won two of three against the Orioles.

In Washington, Alfonso Soriano's two-run homer keyed a seven-run fourth inning for the Cubs. Soriano's 16th home run, his second in two games after a drought of 120 at-bats, began the biggest inning of the season for the Cubs. Starting pitcher Kevin Hart also contributed by faking a bunt and punching an RBI single.

"When you get ahead of them, that's where you want to be because it seems like it kind of takes the wind out of their sails," Jake Fox said. "That home run put us ahead of them and we stayed ahead of them all day."

Fox had a fine day, too, with three hits and a career-high four RBIs. His three-run homer in the sixth gave the Cubs an 11-2 lead.

On the South Side, first the good news: The Yankees beat Detroit on Sunday, so the Sox remain 1 1/2 games out of the AL Central lead.

All that follows is bad news, starting with the final score of Baltimore 10, Sox 2.

It was such a listless loss that most of the 32,069 at U.S. Cellular Field had given up booing and gone home by the seventh inning.

When manager Ozzie Guillen walked into the clubhouse after the game with one of his player's screaming children, he laughed, "You guys played so bad you make them cry."

And although the Sox won two of three against the Orioles, it was hardly the way to welcome defending AL champion Tampa Bay into town for a four-game series.

"We did everything wrong," Guillen said.

AP, TRIBUNE CONTRIBUTED.

CUBS, SOX HITS

» Kosuke Fukudome's former hitting coach in Japan, Kyosuke Sasaki, will join the team in Philadelphia. Sasaki will work with Fukudome for a week or so. "He's going to be on the field and in uniform with us for a few days and let him observe," manager Lou Piniella said.

» The Cubs optioned Sam Fuld to Triple-A Iowa to make room for Kevin Hart, who started Sunday against the Nationals.

» The White Sox will watch Freddy Garcia throw a bullpen session Monday and then assign him to a minor-league rehabilitation stint. "I'm feeling good," Garcia said Sunday. "If I have no pain, I can pitch." TRIBUNE

Movin' on up

Lance's missed chance?

Contador shows Armstrong who's boss in Tour after Stage 15

VERBIER, Switzerland Lance Armstrong all but conceded the Tour de France on Sunday to his teammate and rival Alberto Contador after the Spaniard blew away the pack and seized the yellow jersey as the race entered the Alps.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm happy to be a domestique," Armstrong said, using French cycling jargon for a backup rider.

"I'm proud of him."

The seven-time Tour champ moved up from fourth to second in the standings but lost time to his Astana teammate, whom he now trails by 1 minute, 37 seconds.

Contador, the 2007 Tour champ, basked in the support from the Texan.

"Lance Armstrong was my idol, but dropping him today wasn't important—he was just like any other rider. ... It's an honor for me to have him working for me," he told reporters through a translator.

Armstrong, who had entered the day fourth overall, finished ninth, 1:35 behind his teammate.

Contador said Sunday's result left no doubt about who should be considered the Astana team leader.

"The differences now are pretty big, and the team's bet should now be me, no?" Contador said.

Armstrong conceded that Contador had been superior.

"I think when Alberto went, he showed he's the best rider in the race, certainly the best climber," Armstrong said.

Riders get a rest day on Monday. The Tour ends Sunday in Paris.

TOUR DE TWEET

The number of cyclists in the Tour de France using Twitter has given fans a unique look at the race. Here's what some of them tweeted about Sunday.

@lancearmstrong St15 done. Ouch! Verbiere was as hard as I thought. Alberto—super and had great punch/power. A heartfelt congrats to him. Rest day 2morrow!

@mcewenrobbie Stg lived up to expectations. AC is boss, questions answered. gd ride Andy S, great ride Wiggo. always had the motor-chassis now tuned for mtns!

@ChristianVDV Ouch! hurt locker for me today. Tried to go with the boys at the bottom and paid dearly. Wiggo ruled today and AC smashed it as expected.

@LeviLeipheimer Congrats to Alberto, showed he's the strongest. Great rides by Lance & Andreas as well.

» Tom Watson (left) squandered a chance to become golf's oldest major champion. The 59-year-old missed an 8-foot putt on the 72nd hole of the British Open, then lost a four-hole playoff to Stewart Cink.

Beach or bust!

Plan a road trip to scenic Lee Street Beach in Evanston

By Rebecca Palmore

Ah, Evanston. You're so close, yet so far. Each time we think of visiting your picturesque, sandy beaches we're reminded of the very distance that divides us. And that pesky $8 entrance fee. But before summer ends, we're making the trek, and by hell or high water, we'll dig our toes into your north suburban shores.

Our Evanston to-do list includes a stop at Lee Street Beach, a secluded, quiet option among Evanston's handful of sandy respites. Not only does it offer a peek at the Chicago skyline (oh, glorious sight!), but it's also the longtime favorite of senior lifeguard Ben Terry, who lives just two blocks away.

What's the best thing about Lee Street Beach?

I like the scenery the most. It's kind of closed in. You have a break along one side and you have the trees and the rocks on the other. I also like the crowd. ... I get a lot of friends through here ... families, teachers, even kids I went to school with.

What's the sand like?

The sand is great. ... No rocks. Completely smooth, fine sand.

Do you go to the beach when you're not working?

Yeah, absolutely. [Laughs] Almost every day. It's kind of sad.

When you're off the clock, do you give your fellow lifeguards any grief just for fun?

Yeah, probably a little bit here and there, but nothing too much.

You don't go out and fake a drowning?

No, no. The thing about working at the beach is that everyone really loves their job, so it's easy to come back to the beach. They're not going to be all jealous that I'm not working.

Are people ever surprised that they have to pay to visit the beach?

Yeah, pretty often. The regulars ... buy season passes, which turns out to be a much better deal. The complaining comes from people who aren't used to coming to the beach. ... Don't let the daily fee really throw you off. It's worth coming by.

MAKE A DAY OF IT

Where to stop before and after Lee Street Beach

Before: Soothe your road-trip nerves with an herbal tea ($2.50) from the Brothers K Coffeehouse (500 Main St. 847-328-7940). Or throw caution to the wind with a double shot of espresso ($2.25) made with Metropolis Coffee Company beans. Snack options at Lee Street Beach include ice cream, chips and snacks from a vendor routinely planted just outside beach gates.

After: Shake off the sand and walk to bustling Union Pizzeria (1245 Chicago Ave. 847-475-2400) for a cocktail and wood-fired pie (try the simple margherita, $12). Eclectic diner The Lucky Platter (514 Main St. 847-869-4064) offers a more casual feel and menu options such as Thai-spiced tilapia ($14.25) and honey-baked ham-and-brie sandwiches ($8.75).

DON'T KNOW ABOUT THIS...

A surfer once sued another surfer for "stealing his wave." The case was thrown out because the court was unable to put a price on "pain and suffering" endured by the surfer watching someone else ride "his" wave.

'TORCHWOOD: CHILDREN OF EARTH'
8 P.M.
MONDAY-FRIDAY,
BBC AMERICA

'Torchwood' thrills for more than 'sci-fi' fans

Many TV viewers automatically tune out when they hear the term "science fiction." So let's forget about genre labels for a minute.

The British import "Torchwood: Children of Earth" is the best conspiracy thriller you will see on American TV this summer.

It has everything any adrenaline junkie could want. A corrupt government conspires with an evil organization to take control of what is most precious to its citizens. The deadly duo hunts down the only people who can save the day while those heroes, who actually work for the government that wants to kill them, deal with skeletons in their own closets.

Action, humor, drama, sex, strong acting: These elements rocket across your TV screens during five nights of sizzling hot TV.

Now, if you do have an aversion to all things sci-fi, imagine that evil organization is a malevolent, multimillion dollar corporation and not an all-powerful alien race that's using the world's children as messengers to tell civilization it is about to be destroyed.

"Torchwood: Children of Earth" may be the shortened third season of BBC America's most popular series, but no one will feel cheated that it begins at 8 p.m. Monday and ends Friday.

It's an epic journey into the darkest parts of human nature. "Torchwood" creator/writer Russell T. Davies and director Euros Lyn have fashioned a high-stakes story about secrets, lies and sacrifice.

The Torchwood team of alien hunters doesn't escape unscathed.

Led by Capt. Jack Harkness (John Barrowman) and consisting of Capt. Jack's love, nattily dressed Ianto Jones (Gareth David-Lloyd), former cop Gwen Cooper (Eve Myles) and its unofficial fourth member, Gwen's hubby Rhys (Kai Owen), the team still is reeling from the deaths of two members when the miniseries begins.

Their grief is quickly pushed aside when the Earth's children suddenly stop. They freeze where they stand, then just as suddenly snap out of it. When it happens again, they begin speaking in unison, "We are coming."

To say more, honestly, would be doing viewers a disservice. I want you to enjoy the twists, turns, shock and awe as much as I have.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CANCER

June 22-July 22
There's a new moon in your sign, and you're ready to let go of the past. If your honey yelled at you the other day, you know it was just her PMS or his displaced anger at his boss. You're in a "let's make love, not war" mood.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

You'll get away with murder as three planets increase your luck. You'll date three people in one night, and nobody will complain. You'll have phone sex with a lusty ex while your current flame sits in the next room, and nothing bad will happen.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Sometimes you're too smart for your own good. Your IQ is so high that you can barely stand to be around some people. Mars is reminding you that you'll never watch "American Idol," talk enthusiastically about the Octomom or give a crap about football. Too bad your honey does.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

One minute, you're a happy singleton. The next minute, you're desperate to get married and pop out some rugrats. Or if you're with someone, one day you're ecstatic and the next day you're miserable. You can thank Venus for that.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

A funky lunar eclipse is encouraging you to seek more sexual variety. Help your partner get more creative in the bedroom. If he or she refuses, you're out of there. You have too much sensuality to let any of it go to waste.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You could be questioning the long-term viability of a relationship. Venus is opposite your sign, putting you in a skeptical mood. Face it: Your partner will never learn to put down the toilet seat or clean her hair out of the bathroom sink. Deal with it or move on.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

A moon opposition has you questioning your overall attractiveness, but you're sexier than you realize. That bookish, shy, repressed-looking thing is a big turn-on for a certain percentage of the population. The trick is to locate that segment of the population.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You're scattered in a hundred million directions. Jupiter has you promising 16 different people that you'll date them exclusively. You're writing checks that your body won't be able to cash, and it's going to catch up with you sooner or later.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

The moon is putting you in a generous mood. You'll spend hours providing a shoulder for a girlfriend to cry on, listening to her terrible tales about her boyfriend. You'll feed stray kitties and rescue pound puppies. You could meet another Good Samaritan along the way.

Aries

March 21-April 19

Your partner is in an adventurous mood. Let go of your addiction to boring, vanilla sex and access the powers of your imagination. The moon says worry less about getting it wrong and trust that you'll figure things out along the way.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

Pluto has you obsessing about that dark, mysterious someone from your past. You wonder if your convicted felon former fiancé ever got out of jail. Or you're worried that you made a mistake telling that nymphomaniac girlfriend to take a hike.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

You're tired of dating losers. Saturn has you fantasizing about marrying a rich man. You keep attracting slackers who live on their mom's couches or leech-like women who suck the money out of a guy. Try to shift gears.

OUT

Bruno

That's gotta hurt! Despite lots and lots and lots of buzz (not to mention a gangbusters opening), "Bruno" has fallen out of favor with moviegoers. Ticket sales for the Sacha Baron Cohen project plummeted 73 percent from last weekend, according to online.com, to an estimated $8.4 million from its $30.6 million opening. That puts it in the same company with other notable bombs such as "The Real Cancun" (What?), "The Adventures of Pluto Nash" (Who?) and video-game stinker "Doom" (Why?). It's definitely not fabulous.

WHATEVER

Paula Abdul

Days after Ryan Seacrest's $45 million "American Idol" deal became public, judge Paula Abdul is dropping hints through her manager that she will not be returning to the show unless producers change their tune and tell her what's what. "Very sadly, it does not appear that she's going to be back on 'Idol,'" manager David Sonenberg told the L.A. Times when asked about contract negotiations. Sonenberg said Abdul hasn't received an offer on the upcoming ninth season. So is she in or out? Or is all of this just a negotiation tactic? All we can say for sure is ... whatever.

IN

Rumer Willis

The other famous pillar of the Bruce Willis-Demi Moore-Ashton Kutcher set, Willis is due for a stint on the upcoming season of "90210," and the cast is, like, totally ready to welcome her in a big way. "Rumer Willis is joining us for a little while," Shenae Grimes, a.k.a. Annie Wilson, tells people.com. "I'm not sure for how long, but we are very excited." Whether Willis will totally dominate the halls of West Beverly High remains to be seen. Of course, the bigger question is whether Kutcher will try to take advantage of the opportunity to hang out with women his own age.

In, out, whatever

What's going down in pop culture right now?

Keeping up with the celeb gossip can be a full-time job. (And, in some cases, it actually is.) To make it easier to digest, RedEye likes to take a step back every once in a while to assess who's hot, who's not and who is, well, somewhere in between. Enjoy!

Grand Dupri

Excuse me, but—Janet who?

With breakup rumors swirling around Jermaine Dupri and Janet Jackson, all eyes were on Dupri during his visit to the Windy City last week.

Us Weekly magazine reported that the couple recently split after a 7-year relationship due to personality conflicts. Dupri was noticeably absent from the July 7 memorial service for Michael Jackson at the Staples Center in L.A., which got the rumor mill spinning.

But back to Chicago, where Dupri spun a DJ set Thursday night at Underground and seemed to be in a “great mood,” eyewitnesses told me. Dupri yelled to the crowd over the microphone and said he came to the Windy City to party.

“What’s up Chi-Town?” he said as he opened his set with Kid Cudi’s “Day and Night.” “I came out here from the ATL to tear this mother down!” Although Dupri didn’t say a word about Janet, he did give a shout-out to MJ before playing a few songs. “I love you, Michael,” he said before playing a medley of Jackson hits including “Rock With You” and “Billie Jean.”

During his set he also tweeted to people to come out, since he hadn’t been in Chicago since his birthday last year—which he also spent at Underground. Dupri declined to do any interviews with the press and ended up crashing at the James Hotel.

Strictly chill

Rapper Wale always had a career in hip-hop in mind for himself—even if everyone else didn't.

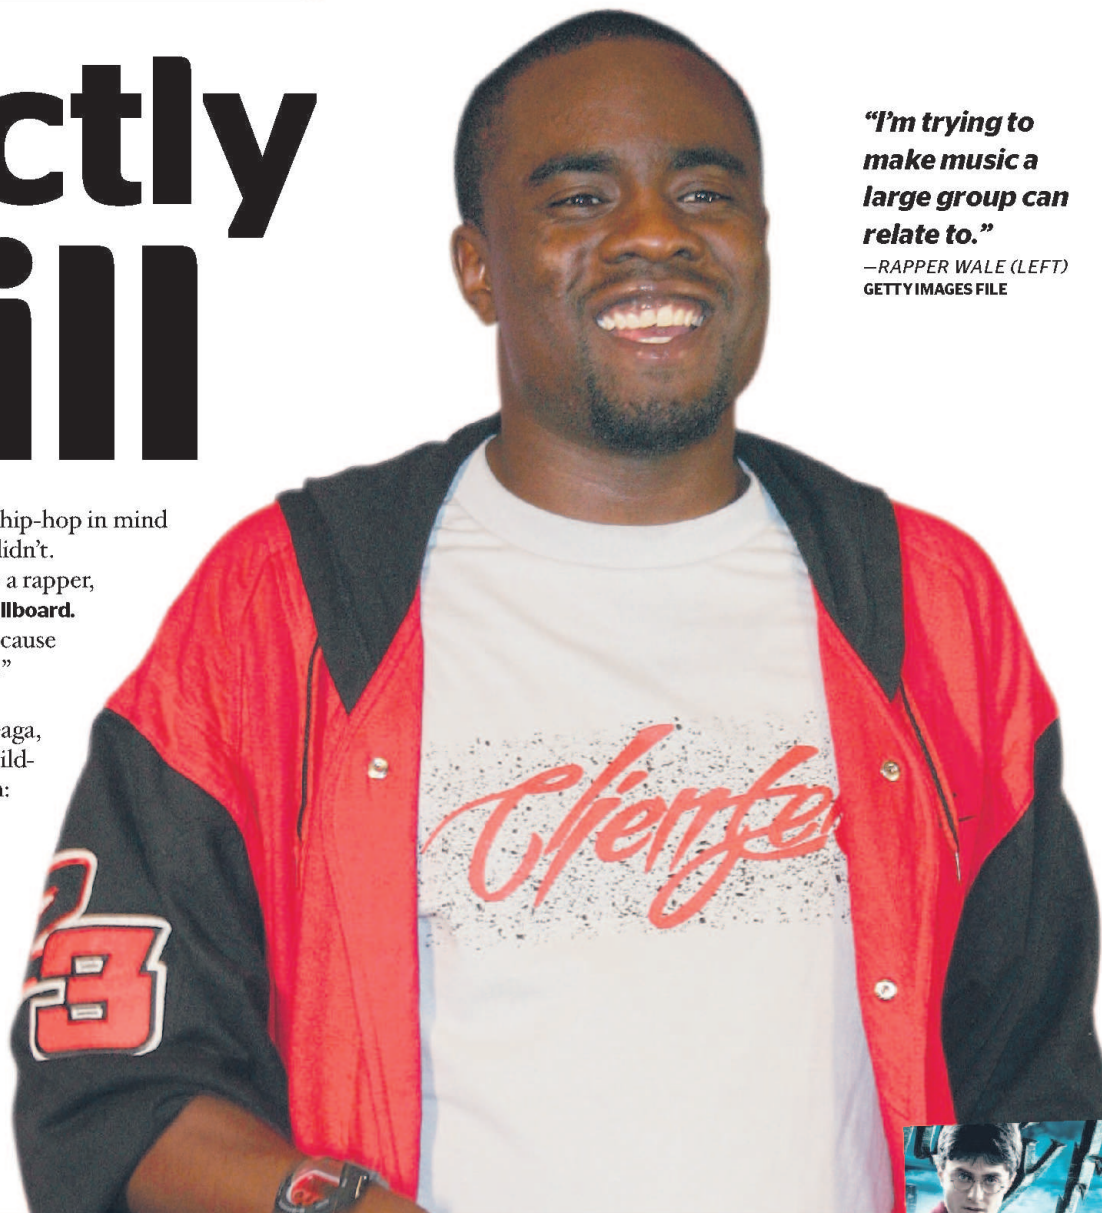

"When I told girls I wanted to be a rapper, they told me to get a life," he tells billboard.com. "It was the ultimate turnoff because everyone thought it was unrealistic."

It's very real now: Wale's track "Chillin'," which guest-stars Lady Gaga, slowly is climbing the charts and building anticipation for his debut album: "Attention: Deficit," scheduled to drop in late September.

Wale keeps his lyrics pretty chill too: "My reality is the same as a lot of people's," he says. "Chances are that you know more about my lifestyle than that of a gangster—I buy regular cars and try to meet nice girls. I'm trying to make music a large group can relate to."

Ugly incident for 'Ugly' stars

Beverly Hills' Four Seasons Hotel was evacuated ahead of an appearance by "The Ugly Truth" stars Gerard Butler and Katherine Heigl because of a telephoned bomb threat, Us Weekly magazine reported. Police scanned the hotel and allowed guests back inside when nothing was found. Butler and Heigl, on hand to promote their new comedy, took pictures with fans outside in the meantime.

Ex factor

Yes, Nick Lachey heard about his ex-wife Jessica Simpson's breakup with her boyfriend Tony Romo. But no, Lachey doesn't see a "Newlyweds" reunion in the cards even though he and Simpson are newly single. "I certainly have heard about her breakup and I wish her the best, as I've always done," Lachey said, according to people.com. "Aside from that, there really is nothing to say." He added that he and Simpson haven't talked in "probably two years." Uh, anyone else feel a chill?

"I like my butt. ... It's been behaving so far, and if it doesn't, I can spank it a little bit and put it back in place, just like I do with my men."

—MODEL AND REALITY TV STAR JOANNA KRUPA ("THE SUPERSTARS"), TO MAXIM MAGAZINE, ACCORDING TO AN EXCERPT PUBLISHED IN THE NEW YORK POST

Hooray for Harry

The "Harry Potter" series still has the magic touch. "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince" trounced the box-office competition over the weekend, hauling in $79.5 million to take the No. 1 spot. The movie has made $159.7 million since it opened Wednesday, making it the sixth best five-day opening ever.

1. "The Dark Knight," $203.8 million
2. "Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen," $200 million
3. "Star Wars: Episode III—Revenge of the Sith," $172.8 million
4. "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," $169.5 million
5. "Spider-Man 3," $169.4 million
